FOREWORD

Volume V is the first substantive volume to be published in this series, entitled "United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea, 1982: A Commentary," of which the introductory volume appeared in 1985. The series is projected as encompassing eight or nine books in six volumes. As with any collegial work, the preparation of the volume represents the coordinated efforts and the support and hard work of a great many institutions and individuals.

We wish to record our deep appreciation for the invaluable and continued support of this Project by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation in New York, and by the Japan Shipbuilding Industry Foundation in Tokyo. Their generous funding has sustained the Project for the last five years. Without their support, the Project could not have achieved the high academic standards and worldwide participation essential to its success.

Credit for this volume goes to Professors Shabtai Rosenne and Louis B. Sohn. As volume editors as well as principal contributors, they have worked closely with the major contributors, other volume editors and the Editor-in-Chief to develop the commentaries contained in this volume, and to ensure to the extent possible at this stage the coordination with other volumes in this series.

Special recognition is due to the other principal contributors, Gritakumar E. Chitty and Daniel Vignes, who, despite their other duties, devoted a great deal of their time to the drafting of the commentaries. The Project is also indebted to those individuals who have reviewed the draft manuscripts and provided comments on which revision of the text was undertaken, particularly Lucius Caffisch, Chen Degong, Gudmundur Eiriksson, Takeo Iguchi, Thomas A. Mensah, and L. Dolliver M. Nelson.

Thanks are due to the Center for Oceans Law and Policy and its staff. Donna D. Ganoë, as Administrator of the Oceans Center, has overseen the administrative and budgetary aspects of the Project. Production of the manuscript could not have been accomplished without the conscientious services of June Butler, who bore the heavy burden of word processing the manuscript and preparing it for the printer. Neal R. Grandy, who is the Project Coordinator, also serves as research associate and Assistant Editor, working with contributors, editors and reviewers in production of the manuscript. In addition, Mr. Grandy acts as technical editor and has worked closely with the publisher on the design and layout of this volume.

We also wish to express our appreciation to Satya N. Nandan, Under-Secretary-General and Special Representative of the Secretary-General of the United Nations Office for Ocean Affairs and the Law of the Sea, who, along with Shabtai Rosenne, serves as a General Editor of the Project. We also thank the staff of the United Nations Office for Ocean Affairs and the Law of the Sea, who have been supportive of this project from its inception.

Other institutions and individuals have also contributed, directly or indirectly, to the development of this volume and deserve mention here. At the University of Virginia School of Law, Margaret A. Aycock, International and Oceans Law Librarian, has time and again helped in obtaining reference material, as has Marsha Trimble, Law Library Archivist, who maintains an extensive archive of law of the sea material. In addition, the law firm of Kelley Drye & Warren, in Washington, DC, has provided facilities for meetings as well as resource support to the Project.

In addition to the University of Virginia, the libraries of the Universities in which the volume editors have been working in the course of producing this volume have included the Squire Law Library of the University of Cambridge, England, as well as the law libraries of the University of Georgia (Athens, Georgia), and the Universities of Amsterdam and Utrecht in the Netherlands. Their helpful cooperation is gratefully acknowledged.

Finally, special thanks are due to the staff of Martinus Nijhoff Publishers for all their guidance, cooperation and efforts in bringing this volume to fruition.
